Reliable business statistics from the Economic Census are critical to evaluating the condition of the American economy.

“There is no question that the Economic Census is the most important building block to the economic picture.”

-- Maurine Haver, National Association for Business Economics (8/18/11)